Dear Mark:

Thank you for your speech to the Lockheed Martin TSS Technical Exchange conference last week. Based on the many comments I got after the conference, it was extremely well received.

The theme of creativity was especially apt for this audience; Lockheed Martin relies on its employees for innovative solutions to complex problems, and this group consisted of the top performers in the Transportation and Security Solutions Company. Creativity isn't just a "nice-to-have" for this group; it's a requirement!

I apologize for the few technical obstacles you had to overcome, given the layout of the room. Luckily you were able to work around them and they didn't have an impact on the presentation.

Thanks again.

Sincerely,
